

Eloise Ullman was born in Washington, DC, raised in the DC suburbs (Kensington, MD) and has lived in the Annapolis community of Winchester on the Severn since 1994.

She received her BS and MEd from the University of Maryland (College Park), taught school in Montgomery County and retired in 2013 from a 35-year career in non-profit association management.

Eloise is active in the Annapolis theatre and music community as a performer, director and writer. She currently serves as president of Remember Inc, an Annapolis-based non-profit whose mission is to collect the stories of local people and create living histories that celebrate these folks, the Bay, Annapolis and more. (You can hear her voice on the Annapolis Maritime Museum's new audio tour.)

From living on a steep slope above Chase Creek, Eloise was forced to become interested in environmental issues and became a Master Watershed Steward in 2011. She continues leading and assisting neighbors care for Winchester's precious common areas, which include the community beach – "the jewel of the Severn!"
